LOSS OF FEDERALS HEAVY

Shots Flew Into Douglas, Arizona, and One Man Was Injured There.—
Had Lost All the Ground Gained by Fighting of Early Morning.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Douglas, Ariz., April 17.—The Mexican troops opened fire on Agua Prieta this morning, after having driven in a detachment of the rebel cavalry that met them some distance in front of the town.

As soon as the federals came within range the rebels opened from the tranches, but were obliged to retreat to their second line.

Here the firing became so hot that the federal's right wing was forced back and swung around to the east and north.

The fighting continued some time, then slackened and apparently the federal attack had failed.

After a brief lull the firing was resumed and the battle was on again.
Gen. Lopez, commanding the rebels told the Associated Press correspondent it was the concentration rebel fire that silenced the federal machine guns, and expressed his opinion that the federal loss was very heavy.

At 11:30 the firing ceased with the rebels holding every position they occupied at the beginning of the battle.
Rebels began digging new trenches at once and Gen. Lopez reported his casualties as light.

One Killed.
Douglas, Ariz., April 17.—An American, John Hamilton, was shot and wounded while in Douglas, near the center of the city.

The firing was resumed at 11 o'clock
the federal machine guns being still out of commission.

Taft's Orders.

Washington, April 17.—With the assurance from both Mexican federals and insurgents the impending second battle of Agua Prieta will not be fought in the town, where Americans live, and property just across the line at Douglas, Arizona, will be endangered. President Taft today ordered that American troops will not cross the border if the premises are carried out. A definite battle is expected today.

The rebel forces near Agua Prieta under General Garcia number more than two thousand. The federal number twelve to sixteen hundred under General Haron and Colonel Diaz. The American troops at Douglas, Arizona, are under Col. Strick.

Battle Starts.
Douglas, Arizona, April 17.—One thousand Mexican federal troops under Col. Diaz, nephew of President Diaz, attacked the insurgents this morning at six thirty today. Two federal machine guns belched death into the insurgent ranks.

The first ammunition load of wounded reached Douglas at 9:30. Oster Gall a newspaper man of Douglas who slipped into the insurgent trenches was wounded slightly.

Two thousand citizens of Douglas,
defied the order to stay under cover and crowded the house tops to watch the battle.

The rebels in the trenches had lost about fifteen wounded after the battle had raged five hours.

The federal's fighting in the open had lost fifty killed and one hundred wounded.

The battle still raged at a late hour this afternoon. The insurgents had then estimated by General Garcia, rebel commander, at 20, with fifty wounded. The federal loss is estimated at 75 dead and 150 wounded.

IOWA SENATOR WILL JOIN PROGRESSIVES WHEN HE TAKES SEAT

Kenyon, Breaker of Deadlock, and Trust Buster, Says He Takes Lincoln's Life For Inspiration.

[BY UNITED PRESS.]

Washington, D. C., April 17.—Progressive legislation in the United States senate will not wait for support in the election of W. S. Kenyon for the long contested Holliker seat.
The newly elected senator is also a bitter enemy of that evil "corrupt practices in elections." His instinct as a "trust buster" may lead him to look into the innermost corners of the Lorimer scandal. Senator Kenyon has written the following for the United Press:

"All my life I have turned to the teachings of Abraham Lincoln for inspiration and I shall continue to do so and as a senator from Iowa shall work for the greatest good a government can do for the elevation of man. I shall strive to lift from the shoulders of humanity all unnatural burdens that good legislation can remove. So I shall favor in a general way the income tax laws, workingmen's compensation acts and shall urge a stringent corrupt practice act and such other measures along these lines as will benefit the people. I am for human rights as well as property rights and place human rights first.

"We believe as a people in the conservancy of natural resources, and we believe, I take it, actually in the conservancy of national ideals. The people view with alarm a scheme of fraud and corruption by which a man may be elected to the United States senate from a neighboring state and I propose to unite with others in an effort to probe to the bottom this election of a United States senator. We have had a loss in population in Iowa, but we have never lost our high ideals and I thank God that it never takes a grand jury or a committee of congress to investigate the election of a United States senator from Iowa.
I may hear that while my friends have had a long struggle in the contest resulting in my election I take my seat in the senate without a pledge or a promise.

"I want to make this pledge to the people of Iowa, and of the country, and it is the only pledge of any kind that I have made in this campaign and that is to give to the people the best service of which I am able, with all the energy which I possess and I will represent Iowa in the senate regardless of any political faction."

NEW JERSEY IS TO PASS PRIMARY BILL

Oregon Plan is to Be Distanced in Passage of Reform in Jersey Election Laws.

[BY UNITED PRESS.]

Trenton, N. J., April 17.—When the lower house of the state legislature convenes in a number of minor amendments to the German direct primary and elections reform bill, which is expected to be done within the next few days, Governor Woodrow Wilson will immediately sign the measure and Oregon will have been distanced in the campaign to give the people the entire say in the selection of public officials.

The new election law affects all primary and general elections. It provides that election officials shall be appointed only after they have passed a drastic civil service examination regarding these qualifications. Under it every convention, delegate, county, state and national, shall be elected by the enrolled voters. The blanket ballot without designation is provided for and the only power given to politicians is permitting the various county delegations to elect their own county chairmen.

The senate which is controlled by the republicans and which was expected by the bosses to kill the bill unanimously approved it. The senators admitted that the measure was demanded by the voters without regard to party and that it would be political suicide to vote against it.

mands clear that there was no escape."

CONGRESSMEN TAKE SIDES ON "RECALL" PLAN FOR JUDGES

Bitter Fight Is Expected Over Idea
Exemplified in the Arizona Constitution.
[BY UNITED PRESS.]

Washington, D. C., April 17.—The Recall principle applying to Judges and exemplified in the new Arizona constitution, has developed a bitter fight in congress.

Two congressmen, representing branches of the Republican party have written the following statements on the recall of judges for the United Press. Representative William Kent, progressive republican from California
says:

"Believing in popular government, I am forced into the opinion that all the officials should be answerable to the people and therefore I cannot evade the logic which drives me to accept the recall of all public officials, including the judges.

"I am not at all afraid of the result of such power being lodged in the people. I believe that our people are extremely patient and ready conservative and nothing but extremely unworthy conduct or a strictly antipath-etic attitude and not a more trivial difference of opinion could be a cause for the removal of the judge.

"My opinion is that where ever a state has provided for a recall, judges should be appointed and not elected, and for an indefinite term. The appointing of judges, instead of electing would help to take away the course of political judiciary. I am quite sure that in California a governor appointing unworthy judges would be subject to discipline by the people and at the same time I am sure that the man that renders an unpopular opinion because he conscientiously believed that the law tended that way, would be safe in his seat."

Representative Samuel McCall,
republican from Massachusetts stated:
"I do not believe in the principle of the recall of the judges. The judges would not sooner be elected than he would be liable again to enter into a contest for his place. He would be compelled to argue his possibly complicated legal decision in an appeal to the voters.

"If he desires to retain his place he could only do so by constantly deciding important cases, not according to the law, but in a way that would conform to the prevailing popular passion.
In a state having a population, as for instance, Arizona, a combination of disaffected interests against which he had decided might easily overthrow him.

"Believing that the recall of judges would be entirely subversive of independence of the judiciary, and even of well settled civil government, I am opposed to it."

FALSE COPY SENT TO STATE PRESS

BY AGENTS OF THE AMERICAN TELEGRAPH AND TELEPHONE COMPANY.

MISQUOTE PRESIDENT VAIL

"Press Agents" Quote Vail As Favorable To Commission Regulations.
—Other Capital News.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., April 17.—An attempt to "press agent" the Wisconsin legislature into thinking that there is nothing in the world the matter with the American Telegraph & Telephone company, sometimes called the telephone "monopoly" or trust, was tried for nearly a solid week and it has failed miserably. For several days in succession during the past week, much alleged "news copy," repeating and reiterating the complimentary remarks of President Vail of the corporation on commission regulation, and particularly the kind of regulation practiced by the Wisconsin railroad commission, has been assiduously peddled by publicity persons presumably in the pay of the telephone people. It seemed to be the desire wherever possible to have the "statuquo" out from Madison in the name of the correspondents here—and some of it did go out. A lot more didn't.

Meantime, the legislature itself apparently has paid no attention to the published matter on this subject. It failed to interest the members. Few of them recalled the fact that there is a bill pending to compel the telephone companies to pay taxes on the advalorem system, the same as the railroads, and various other minor measures affecting the wire-talking business.

Early Adjournment.

A joint resolution emanating from the senate judiciary committee, for final adjournment of the legislature on May 5, has served its evident purpose—to awaken the members to the necessity of moving faster. More than half of the bills introduced remain in committee, and this would not occasion any excitement. If all were unimportant, the fact that many of the minor measures usually saved for killing toward the close of a session have come out and usually to their death has become painfully evident. The senate has now done little work for two weeks, one of which was virtually a vacation with not more than three members here at any one time. This the senate could afford to do as long as the assembly insists upon occupying hours in debate and upon reconsidering a large proportion of its actions on bills, and reversing itself in half these cases, besides continually re-referring measures that the house is unwilling to pass on until committees have had another crack at them. However, in the last few days the assembly has shown a disposition to quit persiflage and devote itself to more serious business, and affairs will move with more dispatch in the coming week.

DOES AWAY WITH ALL DELAY

Order-Exchanging Device for Railroads Seems to Reach the Limit of Ingenuity.

A new and improved tablet-exchanging device, operating in very much the same manner as the mail exchange devices, has been adopted by the government railroads of New South Wales.

To digress from the subject of the new device for a moment, the system of train operation known as the tablet method, used on British railroads, is one by which the engineer receives an order, called a "tablet," at every station. Several types of devices to enable the engine crew to pick up the orders while a train is running at full speed have been in use, but this new tablet exchanger is claimed to be a great improvement.

The principal feature of the device is the helical or corkscrew arm on the engine for picking up the tablet. As the engine passes the ground exchanger, the point of the arm enters the ball of the tablet and pulls the latter out of the holder. The ball then swings around the corkscrew arm and is gradually braked or stopped by the resistance of the atmosphere and comes to a rest on the arm without clatter or impact. At the same time the arm on the engine is taking the tablet from the ground device, the latter, provided with a simple catching hook, receives the tablet caught by the engine at the preceding station.—Popular Mechanics.

After a Privilege.

The lawyer noticed that his visitor was a keen-looking man but waited to hear from him. The caller laid down a $5 bill and said:
"I want to ask you two or three questions."

"Very well."
"I want to start a coal yard at this end of the Panama canal when it is completed."

"The government will have charge of that."

"Then I want to establish a big ice house."

"You will have to see the government."

"How about a butcher shop to supply the vessels with fresh meat?"

"I think you will have to deal with the government."

"But I can open a saloon, can't I?"

"I don't think so."

"Look here," said the caller, as he bristled up a bit, "I want to be in on a privilege down there. There'll be millions in it. Can't you think of anything?"

"Oh? Um?" mused the lawyer.

"Let me see? Yes, I can. You can furnish roasted peanuts to all passing vessels, and I don't believe the government can interfere."

"You've struck it! You've struck it!" shouted the man. "By the living jingo, you've hit it! No jaw anywhere in the living world against selling roasted peanuts and I'll be there with a hundred thousand bushels and a hundred roasters! When you don't know what's good for you go and see a lawyer."

This Irish Wit?

An Irishman, celebrated for his good humor, was dining one Friday with a friend, and fish was served. The Irishman was particularly fond of haddock and seated himself near a fine specimen. His olfactory nerves, however, soon made him aware that the fish was not too fresh. He first lowered his mouth toward the head of the fish and then his ear, as if conversing with it. The woman of the house, perceiving his peculiar motions, asked him if he wished any thing.

"Nothing," the Irishman replied, "nothing at all, madam; I was merely asking this haddock whether he could give me any news from my friend, Captain Seasmith, who was drowned last Monday; but he tells me that he knows nothing of the matter, for he himself hasn't been to sea for about three weeks."

Wolves Trap Dakota Trapper.
H. L. Mantzell, a Moose River trapper, had a narrow escape from a band of wolves. There were about 20 in the pack and when he began shooting at them his team ran away, leaving him with only a few cartridges in his rifle. With these he killed seven of the wolves, but was compelled to climb to the top of a hay loading machine which fortunately happened to be near at hand, says the Kramer correspondent of the St. Paul Pioneer Press.

He was kept there three hours before the howls of the wolves and the cries of the trapped trapper brought assistance.

Something Missing.

In Kentucky is a quaint character named Ezekiel Hopkins, who once gained local fame by discovering a piece of broken railway line and warning an excursion train in time to avert disaster. So it was decided to present Ezekiel with a gold watch. The head of the presentation committee, approaching Ezekiel with a grave bow, said:

"Mr. Hopkins, it is the desire of the good people of Kentucky that you shall, in recognition of your valor and merit, be presented with this watch, which they trust will ever remind you of their undying friendship." Without the least emotion Ezekiel ejected from his mouth a long stream of tobacco juice, took the watch from its handsome case, turned it over and over in his wrinkled hand, and finally asked: "What's the chain?"—The Argonaut.

Righteous Indignation.

"So you want a divorce, do you?" said the lawyer, peering over his glasses at the worried little man in front of him.

"Yes, sir. I've stood just about all I can. My wife's turned suffragette and she is never at home."

"It is a pretty serious thing to break up a family, you know. Don't you think you had better try to make the best of it for a while? Perhaps it is only a passing fad."

"That's what I have been doing, but there are some things a man can't stand. I don't mind the cooking and I haven't kicked on washing the dishes, but I do draw the line at running pink ribbons in my neighborhood to try to fool the children."—Success Magazine.

INSURGENTS AND DEMOCRATS UNITE IN DIRECT ELECTION PROGRAM.

Washington, D. C.—Developments of the last few days indicate that the insurgent Republicans in both house and senate are to unite with the Democrats in a determined effort to put through an amendment to the constitution providing for the direct election of United States senators.

In the movement Senator Borah and Senator La Follette, both insurgent Republicans, are leading the fight and have been in conference with Congressman Rucker and Sultzer of the house Democrats, both of whom have a leading part in the direct election measure.

London's Water Consumption.
The average daily supply of water used by Londoners last year was 225,000,000 gallons, according to the official return of the Metropolitan water board. This gives an average of 51.5 gallons per head of population.

"We have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla for a spring tonic and as a blood purifier. Last spring I was not well at all. When I went to bed I was tired and nervous and could not sleep well. In the morning I would feel twice as tired as I do now. I got a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I took. I felt like a new person when I had finished that bottle. We always have some of Hood's medicine in the house. It is the best and most reliable medicine I have ever had."—Success Magazine.

ROOSEVELT AT MADISON.

Whether Colonel Roosevelt tacitly endorsed Senator La Follette or whether he merely spoke of him in a flattering manner, in his two speeches at Madison on Saturday, will remain a grave question. Friends of the senator insist that Roosevelt came out flat-footed in favor of the senator, while others, who may be classed as his enemies, politically, say that the former president merely did what any public man would have done under similar circumstances, when speaking in the home state and city of another prominent public man.

The mention of La Follette's name was the occasion of a loud burst of applause which did not continue when the names of other great Americans were named. Roosevelt's audience was keyed up to a pitch of expectancy and gave vent to their pent up enthusiasm on the only occasion offered. The colonel's private secretary was authority that he was surprised at the address given, which only adds to the certainty of the La Follette followers that Roosevelt endorsed their idol.

From the time he arrived in Madison and breakfasted at the executive mansion the guest of Governor McGovern, (ill) he left shortly after one for Chicago and the East, Roosevelt was escorted and visited with. His real address was made to the legislature in the new assembly chamber, but the throngs that awaited him at the gymnasium, the crowds of visitors from out of the city who gathered in pay homage, showed that his visit marked the arrival of one of the great men of the country.

At the Janesville depot the former president also said a few words of greeting. He was immensely gratified with the reception and but for his slight blunder of placing Janesville in Illinois instead of Wisconsin, got along famously. Taking it all in all Roosevelt had a big time in Wisconsin whether he endorsed the state's favorite son or not.

THE RIDDLE SOLVED.

The Sphinx and its riddle has at last been solved. The puzzle of antiquity, the enigma that has bothered scientists and scholars for centuries has given up its secret. Responding gradually to the efforts of explorer and archaeologist, Egypt is giving up her treasures of antiquity. The great museums of the world already possess such marvelous architectural and artistic reminders of a bygone age as to make clear the history of many dynasties hidden for centuries by the all-encompassing sands of the desert. It is the discovery of Prof. George A. Reisner, head of the Harvard University and Boston Museum of Fine Arts Egyptian expedition, are considered by themselves, they alone have information as to the pyramid builders and their times which must be invaluable to the student of world history.

While the Egyptian sphinx for ages defied interpretation, the work of the American exploration societies now indicates that this ancient relic, like the temples and the pyramids, was a royal monument. Professor Reisner holds that the sphinx was intended to be the guardian of the precincts of the second pyramid, and that the head is the portrait of Chephren, the ruler who built this pyramid. According to the Harvard archaeologist, the sphinx was carved out of a knob of natural rock. The puzzle still remains as to how the builders went about the placing of these huge masses of masonry and granite. Not historians, not archaeologists, but modern builders, it would seem, will be able to solve this Egyptian riddle of construction.

It is of absorbing interest to learn, through Professor Reisner, that pieces of magnificent sculpture, vases and other ancient curios were found in the sand where by the prod of a stick they might at any time have been revealed to the casual searcher, especially when the relics disclosed are of a sort to make 4500 years ago seem little more than yesterday.

THE COUNTY BOARD.

The county board of supervisors of Rock county will gather at the county building tomorrow for their regular April session. While there is much routine business to be taken up the question of the establishment of a county workhouse or a county staple is due for consideration. Many members are prone to speak most freely in favor of the establishment of a county workhouse in view of the recent developments at the county poor farm. While it is generally understood that the anti-administration directed against Superintendent Burdick just at this time has been engineered through by persons who have a personal interest in the affair, the result, which may come of the whole matter may surprise the investigators of the insubordination of the inmates. The question of handling the indigent poor is one that is bothering the social workers throughout the country and the results that may be attained in Rock county will be watched with interest by other counties that have the same problem to solve.

THE NEW REGIME.

Tonight is the official end of the present council's life. Several aldermen will retire from office. In the first ward Alderman Lovell's counsel and advice will be missed. In the second, Alderman Scott retires after having done efficient work during his term, and in the third, Alderman Harry Brown retires after four years' service. In the fourth ward Richard retires after a similar term of office. The new men were elected by large votes of their respective wards and take office with a strong endorsement. Schmidley in the first ward has served in the council before, as alderman from the fifth; Connell, in the second, has had two terms in the council as alderman from his ward; and the other two, Shurtleiff in the third, and Spohn in the fourth, are starting upon their political career. Many serious problems confront the new council and it is to be hoped that they will meet all fearlessly.

At the luncheon given to Colonel Roosevelt at the university, Saturday, even the driver of the automobile of the state superintendent of public property was given a luncheon ticket, while the poor capitol police, who did the strenuous work, were ignored. To say they felt the snub is putting it lightly. They suffered from it by losing their dinner.

There promises to be a reaction in the question of appropriations for the state university and many of the state law-makers at Madison feel certain that an investigation, an opening of the doors leading into the dark and hidden places, would not be amiss before any more money is expended to create schools for free boys and other such disreputable teachings.

Those were strenuous times fifty years ago this month, but not more so than the times that are confronting the residents of the state who are guessing what is the next radical bit of legislation that the present legislature is going to enact.

It is safe to say that the common council will not forget the question of improving the streets of the city when they get down to real business. Certainly many of them need careful attention.

While Easter Sunday was a bit chilly and cool the display of the regular Easter frocks and hats showed that many a woman had been busy during the past forty days planning for the parade to and from church.

There promises to be a scarcity of houses in Janesville this spring for renting purposes, and still no mounted interests are willing to build more.

THE POET PHILOSOPHER
(Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams.)
By WALT MASON.

My friend the preacher tells a tale about a man who lived in Oz. "The Oz he knew would make you pale; misfortune use to round him buzz," so says my friend the preacher man, who shudders as he goes ahead: "he had big bolts upon his can, and all his cows and horses were dead. The way he suffered was a sin, and off he wished he was on ice, and horses came up to rub it in by landing him some good advice. You short around and kick and yell when little things seem out of place yet this man's patience didn't fall when all the world was on the bum. He sat around his ruined home, and put fresh flaxseed on his bolts, or scraped them with a currysaw, or painted them with healing oils; he lay upon his humble couch and watched misfortunes come like rain; and yet he never had a grouse; he didn't fuss things or complain. O man, my friend the preacher cries, 'It makes me tired to hear you whine. It does, did not my blooming eyes, when all the world is gay and fine.' "That chap in Oz," I humbly say, "you think the most ill used of men, and yet he was a lucky guy—he never used a fountain pen."

Heart to Heart

Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

OVER THE PHONE.

Eight-year-old Alonzo Cummings of Terre Haute, Ind., was hurrying to school when the poor lad was struck down by a street car.

Taken to a hospital, it was discovered that his arm was badly mashed and that amputation would be necessary.

Just before he took the anesthetic for the operation Alonzo asked to be allowed to say a prayer he had been taught in Sunday school.

And so while the surgeons waited and the nurses bowed their fearful faces the little fellow recited to its amon the petition he had learned.

Then, turning to the nurses with a smiling face, the boy said: "Now I'm ready."

An affecting incident surely. But why and how was it? Why the child's strengthened spirit? Whence came the light on his face? Was it merely the "reflex influence" of his prayer, the reaction from a mental attitude?

Somehow that does not explain. It lacks something.

There was the great Leo Tolstoy. In his last interview with his niece, recently published, he was asked what to him was the greatest thing in the world. Answering, he said in substance:

"The most wonderful thing is prayer—the fact that mortals may make a close connection with the spiritual world."

Is it not so?

If one may by means of some mysterious telephone call up and talk with spiritual personalities, is it not wonderful—incomparably more wonderful than any wireless telegraph?

Not that every numskull ritual or verbal recital is a prayer. Most of them are not. Some of them are little less than blasphemy. The poet says that—

Prayer is the soul's sincere desire Unuttered or expressed.

The cry of the publican, "God be merciful to me, a sinner," was a prayer, while the verbose recital of the Pharisee was merely a public rehearsal.

Tryndall prayer tests? May what you will, is it not natural that in a crisis the human spirit should call up its kin?

Simply because your spiritual terminal facilities may be poor how do you know that Alonzo Cummings' message was not heard at the other end of the telephone?

METCHNIKOFF GERMS.

The word "germ" has come to possess a certain horror for nervous people. They think of it only as indicating some unseen organism, inimical to health and life, against which man might do royal battle if it were the size of an elephant, but which, because it is microscopic, may obtain access to the human system undetected or defy eradication even if its presence be ascertained.

Such germs indeed there are unfriendly to human health and life and responsible for our malaria, our typhoid fever, our yellow fever, our diphtheria, our pneumonia, our tuberculosis and a thousand other ills. But there are also friendly germs, and these are often the best fighters against those that are unfriendly.

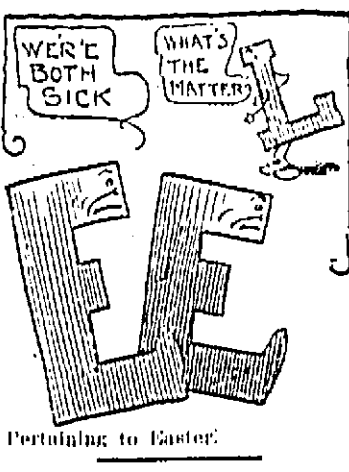

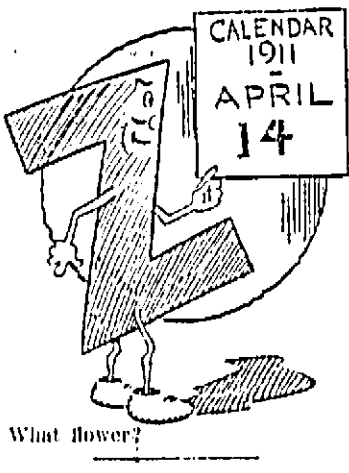

Professor Ilie Metchnikoff of the celebrated Pasteur Institute observed that among the Bulgarians there was a large degree of robustness and longevity, not a few living well beyond the century mark. Believing that in the habits of the people was to be found the secret, he gave his attention to their ways of living and found it to be a common practice to use a milk that had been artificially soured. The souring of milk is accomplished by certain kinds of germs that are always present in the atmosphere.

Metchnikoff investigated the Bulgarian soured milk and discovered the responsible germ, which thereupon became known as the Bacillus bulgaricus. It was found that this could be isolated and scientifically prepared for use in the form of a fluid or of tablets. Just as roots and herbs are, in fact, it is a low order of plant life, from 50,000 to 100,000 living plants, a veritable microscopic herbarium or forest, going into a single tablet. Ordinary milk may be artfully turned into a kind of buttermilk by their use.

From common buttermilk, though usually wholesome, has been soured by one or several of different kinds of germs, not all of which, however, are friendly. But the Bacillus bulgaricus will safely do the turning, leave the rich and nourishing butter in the milk, produce a delicious drink and, by a rapid process of multiplication, impregnate the whole with germs which, taken into the system, rid the intestinal tract of unfriendly germs.

The same germs may be taken directly as medicine, an advantage for those whose systems rebel against the acidity of buttermilk.

"Great Caesar! Is that you, Club-bins? I haven't thought of you for seventeen years."

"Some day, Mrs. Paters, I'll return your call; I want to see what kind of furniture you have."

"A front view picture of you, Miss Miriam, looks much better than a profile; it doesn't show the shape of your nose."

"Hivers, you ought to take a vacation; you're doing some awfully punk work on the paper these days."

"Must you go, Mr. Lingerlong? It's only ten o'clock. I thought it was twelve!"

"There's one good thing about your dinners, Mrs. Jipes; the table is always neatly set."

"I was telling Mr. Smidgin the other day, Mrs. Humphrey, that you'd want to borrow this book the first time you called."

"So glad to have met you, Mrs. Matterson—or is your name Matterson?"

CALL OF THE OPEN.

Maybe, to strike for the heart of the forest,
Maybe by the shores of tumbling streams,
Would bring back the spell of the days that were rare,
Would quicken the glow of my fading dreams.

Maybe, a glimpse of the hills when morning brightens the world with her golden beams,
Would awaken a hope that has long been sleeping,
And lead me again to my castle of dreams.

Maybe, to roam where the wind is sighing,
And the shimmering sea in the sunlight gleams,
Would touch me a song I've despaired of learning,
Would fashion a life from the tissue of dreams.

The Personal View.

Teacher—Our investigations along sociological lines have brought us into contact with the statement that fewer women marry than in earlier times. What have you to say regarding this fact, Miss Jones?

Miss Jones—Why, it's true in my own case.

Greatness.

"Some men are born great, some achieve greatness and some have greatness thrust upon them," said Dilks.

"Yes, and some appear to become great by merely parading on the slightest provocation," said Dubbs.

A Coincidence.

"There is nothing in a name."

"Of course not."

"Still, I have just been reading about a fellow who invented a new propeller."

"What's his name?"

"Swisher."

Worth Thinking About

I do a very large business with out of town patients.

They find that they can come to Janesville and save a good bit of money over what their home dentists would charge them.

I am just now finishing up a lot of work for one of these out of town families.

The home dentist wanted $60.00. My entire bill was $35.00. Quite a saving, wasn't it?

It would be the same in your case.

MEETING.

A meeting of the committee appointed by the Industrial and Commercial club to confer with the Chicago automobile will be held at the committee room in the Gazette office Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

R. W. EDDEN, Chairman.

COUNTY BOARD TO GATHER TUESDAY

REGULAR SPRING SESSION OF SUPERVISORS WILL START TOMORROW.

MANY IMPORTANT MATTERS

County Farm, Possibility of Establishing A Work House, Good Roads and Other Questions Are Up.

Tuesday, April 18, is the date set for the April session of the Rock County Board of Supervisors. There is much work of importance to be handled at this meeting and it is expected that it will not be completed until the latter part of the week.

One of the questions that will undoubtedly come up for investigation is the conditions at the county poor farm. The prominence given the complaints of certain disgruntled inmates has caused considerable talk throughout the county, and both the members of the board and Mr. Barlow want a thorough investigation.

Another problem that will come up is the possibility of the establishment of a county work house. This is a matter that will doubtless bring forth considerable discussion if presented and nothing definite may be done in the matter at the present session until the matter has been investigated.

It is understood that the state board of control has recommended such a institution for Rock county, after having made a most minute examination of the conditions at the county poor farm and it is probable this recommendation will be acted upon. This will be the direct result of the recent attacks made upon the present management of the poor farm.

One of the most important matters to be considered however is the establishment of the county training school for teachers. There are three cities seeking the location, Evansville, Beloit and Janesville. Janesville has made a definite offer to the board of the use of the upper floor of the Jefferson school and a thousand dollars for equipment and an opportunity for practice work in the local schools by the students.

It is understood the board of managers, elected last January, will present the matter to the board for consideration with no recommendations or recommending the offer from Janesville. The routine of the school work has all been prepared and will probably be presented to the board at this session. This matter is however left in the hands of the committee appointed to manage the school.

The election of a new chairman for the board will also come up, but there seems to be but little doubt that the present chairman John A. Paul will be re-elected without any opposition. The question of the road building for the coming year will also be taken up at this time and the roads to be improved will be designated. There is every indication that the present summer will see a large number of country roads permanently improved.

MONUMENTS BEING SOLD BY "CARPET-BAGGERS."

Men Who Have No Established Business Sell Monuments on Large Commissions.

When you place a monument you are placing something to the memory of the dead one you love. It is something that you are purchasing once in a lifetime. It is something you wish to have look good and last forever. There are many grades of inferior granite on the market which are being used in place of good, durable goods. The so-called "Carpet-bagger," who consists of nothing more than a few designs under his arm, may chance to ring your door bell and tell you a fine story of his business being somewhere or representing some large quarry owner and should he get your order for such a sum as he will be able to secure. In some cases the "Carpet-bagger" demands a cash deposit of $10 and if that much is secured you are apt to never hear from him again. Beware of the door bell pullers. Purchase your monument where you'll get good honest granite and a square deal.

DRIVER WAS FINED FOR SPEEDING CAR

Chief of Police Appleby Spends a Strenuous Easter Afternoon Chasing Automobile Speeders.

Chief of Police George Appleby spent a most strenuous Easter Sunday afternoon in an attempt to stop the "speed demons" from making South Main street a race course. Speed maniacs ignored his attempt to compel them to stop, even stuck their fingers derisively at their noses when they passed him at full speed and the result of his endeavors was one lonely "speeder," Virgil Randall, who appeared in court this morning and paid ten dollars and costs for violating both the state and city laws relative to automobile driving.

"They were not all joy riders," said the chief today. "There were local businessmen, doctors, and others who went considerably faster than the law allowed. Some of these very same men driving machines know the trouble they make the police department and still they persist in driving at top speed."

"Why one driver that had passed three machines coming down Main street refused to stop when I waved and yelled at him and would have run over me if I had not stepped out of the way. To add insult to a possible injury he stuck his fingers at his nose as he passed me to show how little he considered the authority of Janesville. I would have given twenty-five dollars for the opportunity to have arrested that man."

"I caught one man, Virgil Randall, driver for N. L. Carle, who was taking a lonely joy ride before going to the garage with his car and he promised to appear in court this morning, which he did, and paid a fine of ten dollars and costs. It is not the drivers I want, but the business men who ignore the law and speed up."

"Taking it all in all I put in a strenuous afternoon. Residents of South Main street telephoned me of the speeding on their street and I went down with my fifteen hundred pound horse but it was a useless task. Had been furnished with an automobile I could have done something. As it was I took a few numbers and the owners of the cars will hear from me as soon as I locate them."

Dr. R. W. Edden, president of the local automobile club, stated today that his organization will cooperate with the chief of police in stopping this speed mania. He said: "You can quote me as saying that the Janesville Automobile club will back the chief up in his endeavor to stop speeding. I will make it a personal matter to see that he is supplied with an automobile next Sunday to patrol the streets and stop this fast driving. I shall also take the matter up with the club and expect that a regular patrol can be arranged for if the committee does not give him the financial assistance that he needs in coping with this problem."

Residents of South Main street, Milton avenue, and other well kept streets are most pronounced in their protests against the automobile speeders. One resident said today: "Too many boys are allowed to drive cars who do not know how to handle them unless running at full speed. The trouble on South Main street, Sunday, is true in almost all the residential districts where the roads are in good condition."

The Advantage.

He—I see where the direct election in Chicago cost three dollars a vote—$995,500 altogether."

She—Now, that's where woman suffrage would come in. If the women were voting, they would have had a bargain election with votes cut down to $2.39.

LAST MEETING OF COUNCIL TONIGHT

Old Council Will Adjourn Since Dis After Business of Session Is Transacted.

Tonight the old common council, which for the past year has piloted the affairs of the city government, will close up the helm and pass out of existence. This is the last official meeting, as the terms of new officers of the city and the new aldermen commence at midnight. Unfinished business, which it is necessary this council should attend to, will be disposed of and everything left shipshape for the incoming city fathers. Principal among the items of business are the amendments to the theatre ordinance and the sale of the bonds for the Racine street bridge. The amendment to the theatre ordinance, which will be presented by the City Attorney, will probably be passed and favorable action, authorizing the sale of the bridge bonds, is also looked for. St. C. Jeffris, attorney for the Wisconsin Telephone Company, will probably petition the city fathers to amend the present ordinance regarding electric wires in the city, but what will be done is a matter of conjecture. Regular session of the new council will be held Monday night.

Little Bed-Time Tales By EDITH HAVENS

The Speckled Trout and the Little Grey Rabbit

GOOD morning," said the little grey rabbit, as he looked down from the green bank into the clear shallow brook where the speckled trout lay half asleep.

The speckled trout almost jumped out of the water. "My! how you scared me," he said.

"I didn't mean to frighten you," said the little grey rabbit. "I just wanted to greet you this beautiful morning."

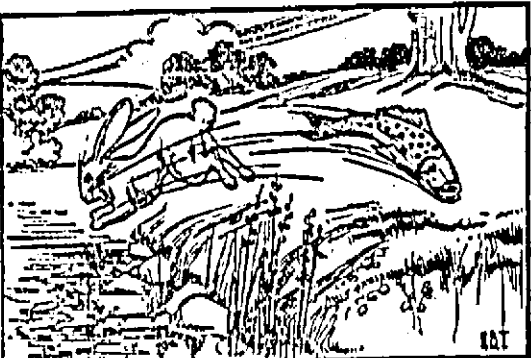

"Oh, that's all right," answered the speckled trout. "It was my fault. I shouldn't have been dreaming. But it was a beautiful dream, though."

"Tell me about it," queried the little grey rabbit as he came nearer the water.

The speckled trout swam over closer to him.

"I was dreaming," he began, "that I was up on the bank there where you are, and that you were swimming about down here where I am."

"And I, too," said the speckled trout, "would like to skip about on that pretty green bank where you are. What do you say—let's change places."

shine on the green bank.

"Oh, help, help," shouted the speckled trout, "I'm choking—I'm choking."

"Oh, help, help," shouted the little grey rabbit, "I'm drowning—I'm drowning."

It was a very lucky thing that a little bush grew close to the edge of the brook or the little grey rabbit would surely have drowned. And it was also very lucky that the green bank extended down hill to the water or else the speckled trout would have choked to death, for while the little grey rabbit, just dripping wet, dragged himself out onto the green bank, the speckled trout rolled with a splash right into the brook.

And there they lay, too tired and thankful to talk.

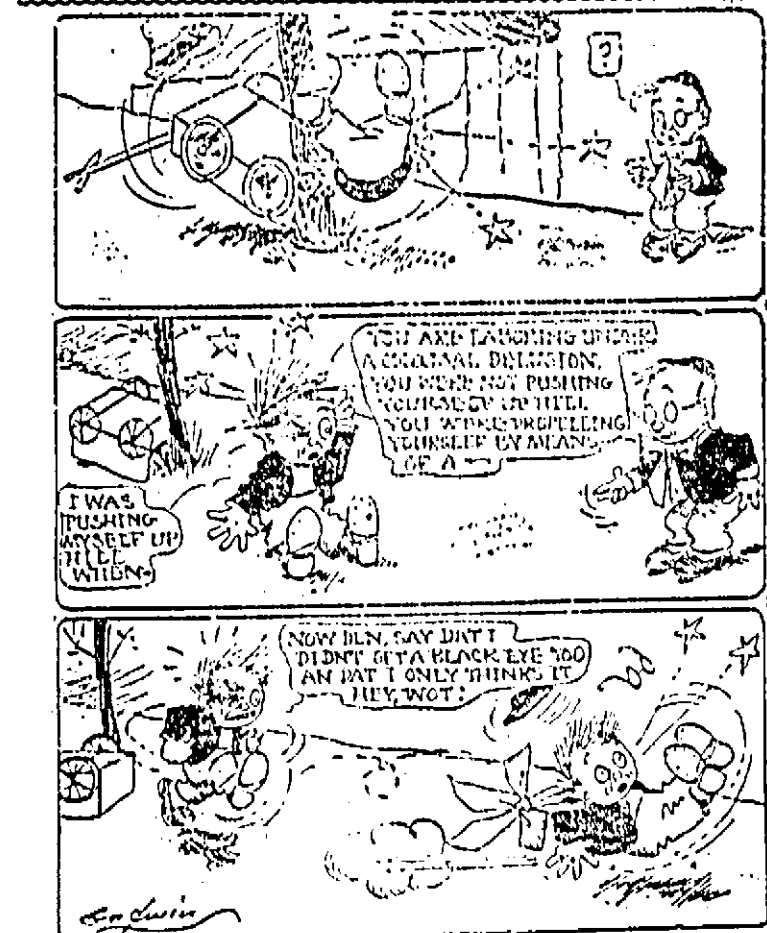

The little grey rabbit spoke first.

"Oh, but I shall never want to change places with anyone again," he said.

"Nor I, either," answered the speckled trout.

"Wasn't it terrible?" echoed the little grey rabbit. "I guess God meant us to be just ourselves, didn't he?"

"I'm sure he did," answered the speckled trout.

The assembly. This amendment is designed to preserve the law from destruction in the courts in case the clause abolishing the fellow servant and assumption of risk doctrine in cases of employers of more than four persons is declared unconstitutional. This discrimination in favor of employers of less than four persons, which was inserted to placate farmer opposition to the bill, is believed to be the only feature that might be dangerous in the event of a court contest, although opinions of lawyers differ widely on this point.

The James woman suffrage bill, which has passed the senate, will not be reported on the coming week unless the assembly committee on elections changes its mind about holding a hearing on Thursday. Several Madison women are said to be desirous of obtaining another hearing, in order to oppose the bill. The committee has had a straw vote, and stands 5 to 2 for the passage of the bill, several of those favoring it only because it carries a referendum clause. It is not likely that another hearing will have any effect upon this line-up in the committee. It is believed that at least sixty votes will be mustered in the house in favor of submitting the matter to the people, and the suffrage advocates will have won a notable victory.

University Inspection.

The talk of attempting to foreclose through a resolution for an investigation of the university, particularly the administration of its finances, is still rampant among members of the assembly, and it is said that the resolution is already drawn, ready to be sprung at the psychological moment. So far those favoring the proposition have waited for one of the bills affecting the university to come up on the floor, in order to make the proposed "separation" more appropos, but the matter also has been held off by pressure on the part of supposedly cooler ones who believe such action would really harm the state institution. It is understood that Gov. McGovern does not look with favor on the proposition, and his attitude in this matter has been bearing upon the recent conference. The governor, it is said, takes the same position as other opponents of an investigation, but he has not indicated his position in such manner as to indicate that he will use any influence he may possess to forestall it.

Incidentally, it develops that there is no reliance on the part of the governor over the defeat of the bill to make the insurance commissioner an appointive officer and the proposed amendment to place the attorney general's office in the control of the legislature. Upon the defeat of the latter measure, it was stated by several members that the chief executive was interested in them, but it is stated on authority that this is not the case.

Five Mile Limit.

Defeat of the famous 1888, to oust students from Madison and create a "dry zone" of a mile around each state normal and county agricultural school, will come as a matter of course, but there is intense anticipation as to the probable vote on the question. It is estimated that not more than 33 votes can be mustered for the original bill, and that the amendment making the bill apply only to Madison and creating a five-mile limit around the university will have only a few more supporters. The third alternative, to extend the present, half-mile zone to one mile, however, may receive many more votes, and there are those who believe it may carry by a close margin. The general opinion is that the bill and all its amendments will be killed, and the lower house will have gone on record on the saloon proposition.

ITALIAN SLAYS IN CROWD

Shoots Youth in Theater Foyer Because He Was Jostled While Buying Ticket.

Chicago, April 17.—In the presence of scores of persons in the foyer of the Castle theater, George Matriciano shot and instantly killed William Gregory, and fled with a crowd of men, women and children in pursuit.

With cries of "lynch him," the crowd chased Matriciano into the arms of Patrolman John Quinlan, a block away. The officer held the fugitive and fought off the infuriated crowd with his club until other policemen came to his help.

Matriciano said he had shot Gregory because the latter jostled him while the two were standing in the line before the ticket window.

AMERICA HOLDS KEY

WHEN WASHINGTON PASSES
TREATY CANADA WILL FOLLOW.

Premier Laurier Hopes That Reciprocity Will Be Indorsed by Both Countries by May 12.

Ottawa, Ont., April 17.—A favorable report on the reciprocity agreement with the United States is looked for by the dominion government not long after parliament reassembles Wednesday.

The prediction that the agreement will be before the senate at Washington Thursday has been noted here with satisfaction by the government's supporters. Settlement of the reciprocity issue in Canada, they believe, now depends primarily upon action at Washington.

The Canadian government, backed by a majority of more than forty in the house, is anxious to put the agreement through as soon as the conservative opposition permits a vote.

Facilitation then by the senate would be merely a matter of form, as the government's supporters in that body outnumber the conservatives three to one.

Until, however, the agreement is ratified by both American branches, the fight against it in the Canadian house will be continued by Richard Jordan's adherents.

The prime minister, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, is hopeful that if ratification has not been actually completed by both countries by May 12 there will be such certainty of its accomplishment within a few days as to warrant his departure on that date for London.

FOUR AERONAUTS ARE HURT

Accident Upsets Balloon Basket and They Fall to Ground—Their Recovery in Doubt.

Berlin, April 17.—Four balloonists were thrown from the car of the balloon Nordhausen at Kulk, Saxony, and it is feared all of them will die. The Nordhausen was one of ten spherical balloons that entered a distance competition, starting at Kulk.

Being overbalanced, it failed to clear the top of a big gas holder. There followed a collision with other balloons that were already lined up and the car of the Nordhausen upset, throwing the occupants fifty feet to the ground.

THEATERS

The Story of "The House Next Door." There are two houses. In the one lives a Christian family and in the other a Jew's family. In the one lives Sir John Cotswold, an old broken down baronet. He is poor. He is old-fashioned. He is a reactionary. He is altogether unattractive by the modern spirit, but he is unyieldingly proud with a fanatical hatred for all Jews, which would give him a keen appetite with which to eat one for breakfast. In particular, he hates the man in "The house next door," who owns the estate that was once his and with whom he is now a tenant and to whom he does not pay rent regularly, because he has not the wherewithal to pay. The man in the house next door represents everything that is the opposite of the Jew-hating baronet. He represents gentleness, thrift, achievement, modernity, liberality, gentleness, as against the pride of birth, reckless self-indulgence, impotent failure, ruined feudalism, inveterate prejudice and a tyrannical spleen which has made the life of his family miserable. And yet the Jew is modest, generous, philanthropic. He lets his neighbor continue on the estate without paying rent. He is constantly engaged in deeds of kindness. He is a kind word, broad-minded, efficient, tolerant, charitable, a modern gentleman, and, because of his race, is hated, and because of his success, is the object of this interdicted hatred. The son and daughter of the grumpy Jew-hating baronet are in love with the daughter and son of the genial and liberal Sir Isaac, newly knighted. The children of the baronet are married. The daughter has not earned work, so as to help provide the necessities of life, and the son has just made his career as an opera singer in Covent Garden, and is full of the spirit of the world's conquest. He has brushed aside all aristocratic notions as cobwebs. He isn't ashamed to make his living and a hundred pounds for doing at the house of Sir Isaac, he not only does not take as his insult, but as a kindly deed.

"The House Next Door" will be presented at Myers Theatre, Monday evening, April 17.

BREEN'S RECRUITS WORSTED BY CUBS

Practice Game at Athletic Park Results in Humbling of the Trolley League Aggregation.

In a seven-inning practice game yesterday afternoon at Athletic park, the Janesville Cubs defeated the embryo trolley leaguers under the tutelage of Walter Breen, to the tune of 5 to 3. As is the case with most of the early games there were errors a plenty, but much of the material showed signs of work that might be developed into star performances.

Excellent form was shown by the Cubs' pitcher, Berger, and a total of four hits were piled up against him. Added to these were three walks to the initial sack, all going to show pretty good form for this early in the year. Four errors were chalked up against each team.

The Cubs will play their first game on April 30, against the Beloit team at Home-Base park. No schedule has been arranged farther than this as yet. Following is the line-up of the teams in yesterday's practice game:

Cubs: Dorn, cf; Berger, p; Porter, ss; Thompson, lf; Sullivan, 2b; De Witt, 3b; Abraham, 1b; Leary, cf; Brown and Cronin, rf.

City Team: Hall and Ruklin, c; Ruklin and Hutter, p; Bell, ss; Brown, 1b; Miller, 2b; Hutter and De Forest, 3b; De Forest and Hall, lf; Berger, cf; Clark, rf.

Remarkable Gifts.

The late Melville de Lancey Landon—"Bill Perkins"—kept in his library at Yonkers a scrap-book of typographical errors. Perhaps the most striking of these errors was a sentence from the society column of a fashionable New York paper: "The fair and blushing bridesmaids were very handsome breeches, the gift of the bridegroom."

A NEW PICTURE OF JIMMY BRITT, Former Lightweight Champion May Meet Battling Nelson.

New York, N. Y.—Although he is secretary to Hugh McIntosh, the Australian light promoter, and is looking after his interests in England, Jimmy Britt may soon visit this country. There now is some talk of having the former lightweight champion meet Battling Nelson in a six-round bout in Philadelphia under the auspices of Jack O'Brien's club. Britt is willing and so is Nelson.

Since Britt went to foreign shores numerous efforts were made to have him return to this country, but no successful has been while unassociated with Hugh McIntosh, that American grand has no inducements for him to come back. Now, however, he may return and fans may have the satisfaction of seeing two ex-champions clash in the ring.

Early Betrothal. Under the headline "Infant Betrothals" the American Hebrew tells of two patients of the Jewish Maternity hospital, in New York, friends of long standing, who "happened to increase the population of the world in that building by a boy and a girl on the same day. They had often expressed the determination to make a match between their offspring and the occasion seemed so propitious that little Leonard Barnett and tiny Rachel Marcus were betrothed to each other in the presence of the staff before either of them was a day old. Unfortunately, love laughs at such bonds and the very fact of their being tied together in this unceremonious way may turn them against each other. Fortunately, at present the betrothal is merely a pious wish and has no legal validity either in Jewish or American law.

Queensland's Great Industry. Queensland is one of the great sugar-producing states of Australia, and practically all of the sugar consumed in the commonwealth is raised and refined in this state and in the northern part of New South Wales. The leading feature of the sugar industry is the number of small cane-growers engaged in it, who now supply cane to the central mills, of which they are proprietors.

GREAT LOVE STORIES of HISTORY By Albert Payson Terhune

Antony and Cleopatra

The banks of the River Cydnus, at Tarsus, were lined with a gaping crowd one day in 41 B. C. All eyes were centered on a barge that slowly made its way upstream. This vessel's like had never been seen. The hull was covered with beaten gold. The oars were of silver, and awayed in time to the soft thrub of music. The sails were of purple silk and so richly perfumed that their fragrance reached the shore. On a divan, under a cloth-of-gold canopy that covered part of the deck, lay a woman, red-haired, decked out in priceless jewels and arrayed to represent Venus. Boys, dressed as cupids, fanned her. On either side of her divan reclined eunuchs, appaerled like mermaids, demigods and other mythical personages. The red-haired beauty on the divan was Cleopatra, Queen of Egypt. She was smiling to Tarsus to confront a stern judge—Mark Antony, ruler of half the world.

Rome had grown mightily since the days of the early kings. It had now long been a republic. Julius Caesar had strengthened and enlarged the state, making himself dictator of most of the civilized earth. He had been slain by assassins. Mark Antony, his closest friend, had formed a league with Octavius (Caesar's nephew), and together they had punished the assassins and made themselves masters of Rome. Antony, the stronger of the two, seemed about to oust the young Octavius and seize the reins of world-empire for himself. But while he was in the east something happened that wrecked all his splendid career. Cleopatra, queen of Egypt, was accused of having aided Caesar's slayers. Antony, at Tarsus, sent for her to come to trial on that charge. Knowing Antony's weakness where women were concerned, she came, not like a prisoner, but as a goddess. At sight of her as she sailed up the Cydnus Antony forgot his resentment, his office as judge, his hopes of world mastery. From that moment he was the red-haired queen's abject slave. Turning his back on Rome, he went with her to Egypt.

There the man who had won deathless renown as general, statesman and orator entered on a life of luxury and wild extravagance. He not only pardoned Cleopatra, but proclaimed her his wife (despite the fact that he already had a wife at Rome), lavished his fortune upon her, and gave her rich provinces and kingdoms that belonged by right to the Roman republic. The two lovers held feasts that were the scandal of the world. At one of these Cleopatra dissolved and drank a million-dollar pearl. They wandered (disguised as workman and chambermaid) into the slums by night. They pretended to be a god and goddess and made their flatterers adore them as such. Antony's enemies at Rome, headed by Octavius, made the most of all this to weaken the former hero's power. Once or twice Anthony was roused from his lethargy and, returning to Rome, tried to forget Cleopatra. But always he hurried back to her. His wife was dead and he married the sister of Octavius. But he soon deserted her and rejoined Cleopatra.

Finally Octavius, seeing that the once mighty leader was no longer to be feared, declared war on him and Cleopatra. Then for a moment Antony's former martial genius flared up. He met Octavius in a great sea battle off Actium. Cleopatra sailed out to witness the fight. As the two fleets clashed Antony's skillful tactics seemed about to defeat his foe. But suddenly Cleopatra, for a mere whim, ordered her galley to leave the battle as if she were in panic flight. Antony left his warships to take care of themselves and hurried after her, fearing she would be wounded. His fleet, being leaderless, was easily put to rout by Octavius. Antony's last chance was gone. He realized what a fool he had made of himself. For three days he sat alone in despair, his head in his hands, and none dared come near him. Then he crept once more to Cleopatra for consolation.

The sickle queen saw that Antony's cause was lost. So she wrote to Octavius secretly, offering to make peace with him. Octavius answered that she could best please him by killing Antony. She knew Antony's character and his wild, weak worship for herself. So, instead of murdering him outright, she had him sent to her. Antony had lost all for love of her. Now he thought he had lost her, too. So he stabbed himself. Dying, he was carried to Cleopatra and breathed his last in her arms, whispering vows of eternal devotion. Cleopatra tried next to capture Octavius' heart. But Caesar's nephew was shrewd and cold-blooded. The charms that had so easily won Antony had no effect on him. He declared he would make Cleopatra walk in chains behind his chariot through Rome. Sooner than do this, the unhappy woman killed herself by poisoning, forcing a deadly serpent to sting her arm.

Octavius relented to the point of allowing her to be buried by the side of the man who had thrown away honor, fame, power and life itself for her worthless sake.

McPherson, president of the Georgia library association and Mr. Henry E. Legler, librarian of the Chicago Public Library.

MRS. KATHERINE HOUGHTON HEPBURN. YOUNG COLLEGE WOMAN PRESIDENT OF SUFFRAGE ASSOCIATION.

Hartford, Conn.—The "Votes for Women" slogan has within the past few years been taken up by all classes of people, men and women, young and old, rich and poor, until it has become a world topic and its demand grows more insistent every day. The National American Woman Suffrage association, organized in 1869, was for many years composed of women of mature age, but its membership is now being constantly recruited from the younger element, notably the college girls. Some five years ago a National College Equal Suffrage League was formed, which at the present time shows a membership of over 2,000. These young women are not satisfied to wait patiently as did the older ones in the movement, and their activity is recognized as an additional stimulus to the progress of the cause.

The Connecticut Woman Suffrage association last year elected as its president one of these young college women, Mrs. Katherine Houghton Hepburn, whose executive ability and original methods have produced marvelous results in this conservative New England state. At the age of sixteen she entered Bryn Mawr college, where she specialized in history and political economy, receiving degrees of A. B. and M. A. in physics and chemistry. From these she went to Hartford for special work in chemistry, after which she spent several years abroad. While visiting relatives in Baltimore in 1904, she met and married Dr. Thomas N. Hepburn. They went to Germany, and while Dr. Hepburn studied surgery Mrs. Hepburn made a thorough investigation of the social and economic conditions of women, which resulted in her becoming an ardent suffragist. In turning to this country they located in Hartford, and Mrs. Hepburn has earnestly co-operated with her husband, who is secretary of the Connecticut Society of Social Hygiene.

In public speaking Mrs. Hepburn is forceful rather than emotional, never failing to have her facts well in hand. A masculine member of one of her au-

GRAND JURY CALLED IN DANVILLE AGAIN

Jurors Will Continue Investigations in Connection with Recent Exposure of Election Frauds. [SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Danville, Ill., April 17.—Interesting developments in relation to the alleged election frauds in this district are expected from the grand jury, which met today to resume its investigation. The indictment of E. N. Leasor, son-in-law of ex-Speaker Cannon, on a perjury charge, is said to be one of the most pressing matters before the grand jury. Mr. Leasor, who made a fortune out of the canal street railway system, and who is now president of the Danville National Bank, sailed for Europe last month soon after the vote investigation was begun.

IS CHARGED WITH MURDER OF GIRL

Trial of Frank Heldemann, Self-Confessed Murderer of Ten Year Old Child Commenced Today. [SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Freehold, N. J., April 17.—The case of Frank E. Heldemann, the young German accused of the murder of ten-year-old Mary Smith, was called in court this morning. The court proceedings it is expected will be brief, as the accused youth has already made a full confession of his crime. Attorneys appointed by the court to conduct the defense will make an effort to save the young German from the electric chair on the ground of his weak mentality.

The murder of Mary Smith was one of the most shocking crimes ever perpetrated in this section of New Jersey and has aroused the community to a high pitch of excitement. The mutilated body of the little girl was found in the woods near Ashbury Park on November 13 last. She had been missing from home several days. Suspicion at first pointed to Thomas Williams, a negro woodchopper, as the slayer of the child. He was arrested and for a time there were fears of a lynching. Later he satisfied the authorities that he had nothing to do with the crime and was released. About the same time young Heldemann was taken into custody, but as no positive evidence was at hand he also was released. On March 15, however, Heldemann was again arrested and under examination made a complete confession and offered to plead guilty. His arrest was brought about by a detective, who had gained his confidence and had traveled about with him for months.

cerned with establishing its independence from other nations. Today the government of this country is primarily concerned with social and industrial problems, which vitally affect the lives of women and children. History proves that governments pay attention to the demands of the people who keep them in power and not to the demands of a disfranchised class. For this reason votes for women is a natural and necessary result of present day conditions."

Truly Regrettable. "A celebrated dancer, you say?" "One of the best known in Europe." "She has youth and beauty, I presume?" "Both." "And yet seems to think her career a failure?" "Yes. You see, for some reason or other, she has never been able to hypnotize a male member of a royal family."

Truly Wonderful Alarm Clock. A few years ago the French government acquired by purchase from a private collection a wonderful alarm clock which was once the property of the great Napoleon and which not only tells the time of day, but, as well, the day, the month, the year, the mean solar time, the phases of the moon, and indicates, in addition, the quarter hours. Its attachments also include a thermometer.

"In the world of Nature two views of life are taken. There is one which looks upon the return of Spring as offering flowers, fruit and grain, for ornament and for food purposes. And the beasts of the field, they seek only food to eat and a comfortable place to sleep or see the Hand and Voice of God, through Nature, offering us the highest and best in life. We meet with one another and the hardships of life may develop a spirit of selfishness.

The BRONZE BELL

BY LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE
AUTHOR OF "THE BRASS BOWL" ETC.
ILLUSTRATIONS BY RAY WALTERS

"You're right; I beg your pardon," Farrell collected himself. "There's little enough to go on. . . . You disappointed us this morning. During the day we got word from a secret but trustworthy source to look out for trouble from the native side. Nevertheless, Halkes and I were obliged, by reason of our position, representing Government, to attend the banquet in honor of the coronation tomorrow. We called in young Clarkson—the mission, you know—to stay in the house during our absence. When we returned the residence was deserted—only we found Clarkson bound, gagged, and nearly dead of suffocation in a closet. He could tell us nothing—had been set upon from behind. Not a servant remained. . . . But, by the way, your man Doggott came in by the evening dak-tong." "Where's Halkes?" "Gone to the palace to threaten Sa-tig Mingh with an army corps." "You know the telegraph wires are cut?" "Yes, but how—"

"Never mind how I know—the story's too long. The thing to do is to get troops here without a day's delay."

"But how?" "Take Halkes, Clarkson, and Doggott and ride like hell to Hadsah Junction. Telegraph from there. The four of you ought to be able to fight your way through."

"But, man, my daughter!" "I know where to find her—or think I do. No matter which, I'll find her and bring her back to you safely, or die trying. You spoke just now of a secret but trustworthy source of information: I work with it this night. I can't mention names—you know why; but that source was in this room ten minutes ago. He's gone after your daughter now. I follow. No—I go alone. It's the only way. I know how you feel about it, but believe me, the thing for you to do is to find some way to summon British troops. Now the quicker you go, the quicker I'm off. I can't—daren't move while you're here."

Farrell eyed him strangely. "Till go," he said after a pause. "But . . . why can't I—"

"There are just two white men living. Colonel Farrell, who can go where I am going to look for your daughter tonight. I'm one of them. The other—do you know who?"

"One of us is mad," said Farrell with conviction. "I think you are."

"Or else I know what I'm talking about. In either event you only hinder me now. Please go."

The Virginian followed him to the doorway. Farrell's horse, a docile, well-trained animal, had come to the edge of the veranda to wait for his master. Otherwise the compound was as empty as the night was quiet. Mounting, the Virginian waved a silent farewell and spurred off toward the city. Amherst passed back through the bungalow to the bund.

He lifted his voice and called: "Oho, Dulla Dad!"

There came a soft shuffle of feet on the stones behind him, and the stunted, white-clothed figure of Dulla Dad stood at his side, making respectful obeisance. "Hazzor!"

"You damned spying scoundrel!" Amherst cried, enraged. "You've been waiting there by the window, listening!"

"Hazzor," the native quavered in fright. "It was cold upon the water and you kept me waiting overlong. I landed, seeking shelter from the wind. If your talk was not for mine ears, remember that you used a tongue I did not know."

"So you were listening!" Amherst calmed himself. "Never mind. Where's your boat?"

"I thought to hide it in the rushes. If the hazzor will be patient for a little moment The native dropped down from the bund and disappeared into the reedy tangle of the lake shore. A minute or so later Amherst saw the boat shoot out from the shore and away in a long, graceful curve to the steps of the bund.

"Make haste," he ordered, as he jumped in and took his place. "If I have kept you waiting, as you say, then I am late."

"Say, there is time to spare," Dulla Dad spun the boat round and away. "I did but think to anticipate your impatience, knowing that you would assuredly come."

"Ah, you knew that, Dulla Dad? How did you know?"

"I, hazzor? Who am I to know aught? Nay, this have I heard"—he paused cunningly:—"You shall find but one way to Kathiapur."

Amherst, realizing that he had invited this insolence, was fair enough not to resent it, and held his peace until he could no longer be blind to the fact that the native was shaping a course almost exactly away from the lake!

"What treachery is this, dog?" he demanded. "This is not the way—"

"Be not mistrustful of your slave, hazzor," whined the native. "I do the bidding of those before whose will I am as a leaf in the wind. It is an order that I land you on the bund of the royal summer pavilion, by the northern shore of the lake. There will you find one waiting for you, my lord."

He landed on the steps of the bund and waited for Dulla Dad to join him; but when, hearing a splash of the paddle, he looked round, it was to find that the native had already put a considerable distance between himself and the shore. Amherst called after him angrily, and Dulla Dad rested upon his paddle.

"Say, heaven-born!" he replied. "Here doth my responsibility end. Another will presently appear to be your guide. Go you up to the jungle path leading from the bund."

The Virginian lifted his shoulders indifferently, and acceded to discover a wide footpath running inland between dark walls of shrubbery, but quite deserted. He stopped with a whistle of vexation, peering to right and left. "What the deuce!" he said aloud. "Is this another of their confounded tricks?"

A low and marvellously sweet laugh sounded at his elbow, and he turned with a start and a flutter of his pulses. "Narain!" he cried.

"Tell me not thou art disappointed, O my king!" she said, placing a soft hand firmly upon his arm. "Didst thou hope to meet another here?"

"Nay, how should I expect thee?" His voice was gentle, though he stole his hand against her face; for now he had use for her. "Had Dulla Dad conveyed me to the palace, then I should have remembered thy promise to ride with me to Kathiapur. But, being brought to this place"

"Then thou didst wish to ride with me?" She nodded approval and satisfaction. "That is altogether as I would have it, Lord of my Heart. By this have I proven thee, for thou hast consented to approach the Gateway, not altogether because the Voice hath summoned thee, but likewise, I think, because thine own heart urged thee."

"Nay, but tell me, King of my Soul, did it not leap a little at the thought of meeting me?"

With a quick gesture she threw her veil aside and lifted her incomparably fair face to his, and he was conscious that he trembled a little, and that his voice shook as he answered evasively: "Thou shouldst know, Ranees."

"Thou wilt not draw back in the end?" Her arms clasped him softly about the neck and drew his head down so that her breath was fragrant in his face, her lips a sweet peril beneath his own. "Thou wilt brave whatever may be prepared for thy testing, for the sake of Narain, who awaits thee beyond the Gateway. O my beloved!"

"I shall not be found wanting."

Little as a snake, she slipped from his arms. "Nay, I trust thee not!" she laughed, a quiver of tenderness in her merriment. "Let my lips be mine alone until thou hast proven thyself worthy of them." She raised her voice, calling: "Oho, Runjit Singh!"

The cry rang bell-clear in the stillness, and its silver echo had not died before it was answered by one who stepped out of the black shadow of a spreading banyan, some distance away, and came toward them, leading three horses. As the moonlight fell upon him, Amherst recognized the uniform the man wore as that of the Imperial household guard of Khandawar, while the horses seemed to be stallions he had seen in the palace yard, with another but little their inferior in mettle or beauty.

"Now," announced the woman in tones of deep contentment, "we will ride!"

She turned to Amherst, who took her up in his arms and set her in the saddle of one of the stallions.

The sower surrendered to Amherst the reins of the other stallion and stepped hastily aside. The Virginian took the saddle with a flying leap, and a thought later was dishing his knees into the brute's sleek flanks and saving on the bit, while the path flowed beneath him, dappled with moonlight and shadow, like a ribbon of gray-green silk, and trees and shrubbery streaked back on either hand in a rush of melting blacks and grays.

Swerving acutely, the path ran into the dusty high road. Amherst heard a rush of hoofs behind him, and then slowly the gauzy-wrapped figure of the queen drew alongside.

They rode on in silence for some time, the path leading them into the dusty high road. Amherst heard a rush of hoofs behind him, and then slowly the gauzy-wrapped figure of the queen drew alongside.

HETTY GREEN BANKER

WILL ESTABLISH CHAIN OF PRIVATE INSTITUTIONS.

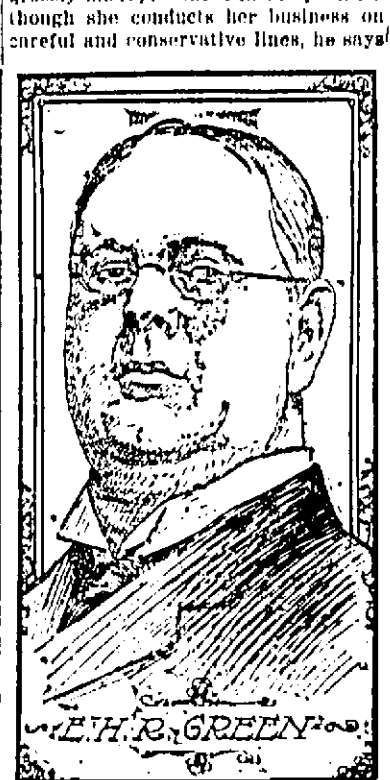

Places Management in Hands of Son—Young Man Says His Mother Has Been Grossly Misrepresented.

New York, April 17.—Mrs. Hetty Green, with the assistance of her son, Colonel E. H. R. Green, has decided to consolidate her interests in a private bank, with a chain of branches running across the country.

"In New York," said Colonel Green, "our firm will be named E. H. R. Green & Co. Branches will be opened in Boston, Chicago, Dallas and San Francisco. We have decided that our interests can best be served from a private bank here in New York. Since the laws of the various states do not give us the right to hold real estate in the name of a corporation or trust company common to all, we have had to organize like other private bankers of this city whose interests extend elsewhere."

Colonel Green pictures his mother as grossly misrepresented in the past. Although she conducts her business on careful and conservative lines, he says:

"My mother is a woman of great energy and business ability. She has made it an invariable rule to reinvest her profits in the territory from which they were drawn, for the rebuilding of that territory."

WOMEN MAY AVOID OPERATIONS

By taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The following letter from Mrs. Orville Rock will prove how much it is for women to submit to the dangers of a surgical operation when it may be avoided by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was four weeks in the hospital and came home suffering worse than before.

Here is her own statement. "Two years ago I suffered very severely with a displacement. I could not get my feet for long time. My physician treated me for seven months without much relief and at last sent me to Ann Arbor for an operation. I was there four weeks and came home suffering worse than before. My mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I did. Today I am well and strong and do all my own housework. I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and advise my friends who are afflicted with any female complaint to try it."—Mrs. Orville Rock, R. R. No. 5, Paw Paw, Michigan.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for women's ills, and has positively restored the health of thousands of women. Why don't you try it?

Line Finely Drawn.

In Maryland a candidate for office cannot legally pay the car fare of a voter.

"The argument has been," he explains, "that every community is entitled to the benefit of its own prosperity."

"Since my mother began her business career she has never asked more than 6 per cent. for her money. The bulk of her loans have been made at considerably lower rates. Because of this attitude and her widely known liberality to her customers in panic times my mother has been able to skim the cream of the borrowers."

"Another point that adds to my pride in her business name is her intense loyalty to her country. She would not invest in a foreign enterprise if it guaranteed a certain profit of 500 per cent. in thirty days."

"Modern financiers look upon her as behind the times and some have volunteered to bring me up to date; but if I am one-half so fortunate in my opinions and judgments as she has been I shall be doing better than any financier I have met."
